Re: Reason for failing to renew

The reason I failed to renew my contractor license is because I had an overdue child support arrears with the Department of Revenue that got out of hand before I knew anything about it.

The State of Florida suspended my drivers license and my contractors license.

It took all my resource to hire an attorney, most importantly establish a relationship and get visitation to a child that I never met, and get my arrearage down to where I could manage to pay my monthly child support payments plus arrears.

After I went to court I was granted that all my license be reinstated.

I have completed my 14 hours of continued education classes and paid the State of Florida DBPR my renewal and late fees. My contractor license has been reinstated.

I really need my license back to provide for my family.

Sincerely,

Charles E. Bowman, Jr.

Re: Work Completed

In my years of being a roofing contractor, I have roofed mainly new houses for Paragon Custom Home, Millennium Home Builders and Qualcon Construction.

I have also subbed a lot of work from Jansen Quality Construction, Bachelor Roofing, Guy Brothers and McManus Roofing.

I have also done some roofs and a lot of repairs for satisfied home owners from replacing total roofs to replacing skylights, re-flashing chimneys down to the smallest of repair and changing out vent flashings.

Thank you,
